Tune: "If You Want to Know Who We Are"

by Arthur Sullivan

(From The Mikado)

Once a trucker on the road
Went out looking for cats to crunch.
He was hauling a heavy load
And had many a Bud for lunch.
His muscles were tough and strong,
His vehicle sleek and long,
If you think it ain't, you're wrong,
Oh!

Saw a cat beside a gate
In the pathway of his truck,
He began to accelerate,
When he suddenly said, "Oh — shucks!"
It wasn't a feline charmer;
This cat was all dressed in armor!
It surely must have been Karma,
Oh!

Then the cat drew out his sword,
All the tires began to shred.
And a kitten behind a Ford
Aimed a tommy gun at his head!
The driver had met his doom,
And off the road he did zoom;
The ditch would become his tomb,
Oh!

All you truckers, hear my plea,
If a Samurai Cat you meet,
Drop your pride and quickly flee;
Turn onto another street.
Tomokato may deign to shred
Your tires and spare your head,
But Shiro will leave you dead,
Oh!
