

Operation Legal Storm

Lyrics: Gary McGath, Copyright 2026
Music: "Operation Desert Storm" by Tom Smith

With rage I'm burning at all of the junk I've been sold.
My teeth are gnashing at all of the lies I've been told.
With good equipment, I'd easily wrap up the fight,
But it all fails at the worst time, and nothing works right.

Now there is someone who promises aid.
For all my injuries I will be paid,
I'll win this damn lawsuit if it's the last thing I do.

The laws are all written by Acme, so how is there hope?
This lawyer says he can help me, but he is a dope.
I'd just get pocket change for each complaint that I lodge.
How many filings can that blasted company dodge?

But they own the judges and they own the court.
It seems there is no place I can get support.
But I'll win this damn lawsuit if it's the last thing I do.

The rabbit in shadows provides a mysterious clue.
It could explain all the things they've subjected me to.
The gray-haired lady has never surrendered her hope,
But I've been lied to, I'm close to the end of my rope.

Yet they've done some things that no court can excuse,
If they are uncovered, they're certain to lose.
And I'll find their secret, because there's one person who knew.

Next line TTTO "I Want to Be Peter Lorre":
To win this fight, I've got to find Peter Lorre.

The law firm is ready to fold, they have spent their last dime.
The Senate committee said I was just wasting their time.
We are still fighting, because we know what they have done.
These guys are ruthless, and they are convinced that they've won.

But I'm mad, I'm persistent, and they're only rich.
When I blow their secret, oh, how they will bitch.
And I'll win this damn lawsuit if it's the last thing I do!

(Spoken) Eureka! That's it!
Subpoena the Roadrunner!
